-  Start taking her temperature every morning and night from around day 57.
-  Record it at a time when the bitch is relaxed (usually in the morning or evening).
-  When temperature drops to 98-99 degrees, she should go into labour within the next 24 hours.
-  Her pupils will dilate, she will start panting and digging to make a bed. She may appear stressed.
-  Temperature will RISE right before it drops, so don't be alarmed.
